Chapter 1: Early Works and the Seeds of Rebellion: Examining No Sweetness Here and The Dilemma of a Ghost

Aidoo's early works, No Sweetness Here and The Dilemma of a Ghost, established her as a significant voice, boldly confronting the realities of postcolonial Ghana. No Sweetness Here, a short story collection, paints a vivid picture of the complexities of urban life in post-independence Ghana, exploring themes of social class, gender inequality, and the disillusionment experienced by those grappling with the promises and challenges of a newly independent nation. The stories portray characters navigating a society marked by rapid social and economic changes, revealing the persistent inequalities that defy the ideals of a liberated nation. The Dilemma of a Ghost, a novel, dives deeper into the conflict between tradition and modernity, examining the challenges faced by a young woman navigating her identity in a rapidly changing society. Changes, a novel, delves into the intricacies of family relationships and the tensions arising from the collision of tradition and modernity. It explores the experiences of a family grappling with changing social norms and the complexities of intergenerational relationships. The narrative centers on the complexities of family, exploring themes of marriage, divorce, motherhood, and the changing roles of women within Ghanaian society.
