Manhwa, Korean for comics, encompasses a diverse range of graphic narratives, from action-packed adventures to poignant romance stories. Unlike its Western counterparts, manhwa often features unique stylistic choices, including panel layouts, character designs, and color palettes. Heraldry, on the other hand, is the system of symbols and designs used to represent families, organizations, or individuals, often displayed on coats of arms. This book explores the fascinating intersection of these two distinct yet complementary fields, focusing specifically on the artistic and symbolic use of blue in manhwa's depiction of heraldic imagery. We will analyze how blue, a color rich in cultural and artistic significance, contributes to the narrative, character development, and overall aesthetic appeal of manhwa.
